

February 22, 2026, 11:15 AM ET

Dear Einstein Community:

Due to the severe weather, traveling conditions are expected to be dangerous on Monday, February 23. Our inclement weather policy is available online for your review, but please refer to the relevant guideline below based on your employment or student status, as well as the transportation information, to plan for tomorrow. Any already scheduled remote activities, such as classes, conferences, and meetings, will continue as planned. Please note that the Einstein Café will be closed but the cafeteria in Weiler Hospital will be open.

Essential personnel: As per our essential personnel policy, essential personnel are expected to report to the campus. Please contact your supervisor for further instructions or if you have any questions or concerns.

Nonessential personnel: Those who can work remotely are encouraged to do so, although we realize this is not possible for all employees. Those who cannot work in-person or remotely must take a vacation or personal day.

Student and teaching faculty: Please watch for additional emails from your respective educational program. Classroom-based educational activities will be conducted virtually. Acting interns who can safely walk to their assigned hospital (e.g., Weiler or Jacobi) are expected to report for duty. Please see the inclement weather policy for required clinical rotations \(M.D.\) for additional details.

Transportation: Regular shuttle and car services are not expected for Monday morning. Relevant updates will be provided as they become available.

For those traveling, please be safe.

Jennifer Garner, MSW
Sr. Associate Dean for Finance and Operations